* From: Prole <proleatacr@gmail.com> Finally..a blog awards for Canada's feminists! Announcing the First Annual Canadian F-word Blog Awards!

Nominations begin

and run until February 8. First/elimination round of voting is February 15 - 16. Final vote is February 22 - 23, with winners announced February 24. Anyone may nominate a favourite feminist blog, with many categories to choose from. In conjunction with this celebration of feminist blogging in Canada, we are raising much-needed funds for WISE (Wellness thru Inclusion Socially and Economically).

Please visit the Canadian F-word Blog Awards webpage, hosted by A Creative Revolution, for more details on this fantastic month-long blog party! <http://www.acreativerevolution.ca>

* From: davejeri@telus.net For those of you who are interested in the "Security & Prosperity Partnership" (sic). The NDP recently hosted a very good info session on it. Very against. Green Party is on record as against it, too. WATCH THIS BEFORE IT GETS YANKED. MAKE SURE YOU WATCH IT THROUGH.

NY Times: Rethinking the Meat-Guzzler

By MARK BITTMAN

A SEA change in the consumption of a resource that Americans take for granted may be in store - something cheap, plentiful, widely enjoyed and a part of daily life. And it isn't oil. It's meat.
